Dear Mr. Fessler,

You have recently requested information concerning Certificates of Compliance for products that you purchase from us. All Elmer's Products items (including Elmer's, Giddyup, and Scientific Explorer) have been fully tested by Third Party laboratories to comply with all applicable safety standards and regulations. For those items regarded as "Toys", they have been tested to ASTM F963 protocols. Under the auspices of the CPSIA, an actual Certificate of Compliance or General Conformity Certificate (GCC) is only required for items manufactured after November 12, 2008. For items where this applies, a GCC is available at <http://www.elmers.com/cpsa/>. For items manufactured prior to November 12, 2008, a GCC is not available, but Elmer's Products, Inc. can affirm our products still do comply with the CPSIA.

Let us know if there are further questions.

Regards,

Richard C. Maksimoski
